Where does your passion for aeronautics come from?

- It's a family affair! This passion was passed down to me by my father, who was a private pilot.

Why did you choose aerobatics?

- I have always been passionate about aerobatic planes, especially for their incredible maneuverability and performance. I was the vice-champion of France in model aerobatics. My dream was, in continuation of model aerobatics, to access the same planes but in full scale, the EXTRA 330.

How did you prepare for the World Championships in Las Vegas?

- It's been about a year since I knew that the French team would participate in the World Championships, and since then, I made the decision to increase my physical training. I do and see a lot through sports because it is something indispensable for performance and well-being. I train almost every day with a sports program that I developed myself.

What did you think of the competition?

- It was quite a mythical, even legendary, competition! Firstly, because of its location and because it was France's first participation in World Advanced Championships outside of Europe. It was my first trip to the United States, which made the competition even more grandiose. .../..

What does being World Champion in Advanced Aerobatics mean to you?

- I had a big dream: to be world champion! For me, it's the fulfillment of a dream since I was little! It also means, above all, being rewarded for many years of hard work. I had my first competition in 2018, and now, five years later, I managed to achieve this title.

Do you have advice for people reading this but are hesitant to take the leap?

- Whether in aerobatics or in other fields, I think you have to believe in your dreams and strive to make them come true. My best advice would be to trust yourself and only listen to yourself. You have to hang on despite the trials and problems that everyone may encounter on their journey.

What are your goals for the future?

- To join the French Unlimited Team! I would like to reach the highest level and perform in future European and global competitions in this new category.»
